SENATOR BURKE'S TALK FURNISHES NEW IDEA ON INDUSTRIAL STATE

OBERLIN, March 14.—State Senator, J. F. Burke, spoke to a very attentive audience in Sturges Hall, Sunday on unionism and industrial democracy. His address was one well worth while as it gave to many of the audience a new insight into present industrial conditions and how they work to influence. Many illustrations from his own experience as a state senator and an employer of labor gave added force to the points he made. Attention was called to the many organized efforts, with each organization fighting for its own selfish advantage, whereas our industrial and social problems will never be settled by a "fight." War never settled anything. When all factions are willing to forget factionalism and be willing to come together on a basis of co-operation, of give and take, each willing that the other should have a fair return, neither fighting for a mastery, then and not until then will the matter be settled, and settled right. The meeting was under the auspices of the Liberal Club of the College.

Railroads Watse No Time Seeking Federal Monies

WASHINGTON, March 14.—The financial plight of the railroads was reflected today in a veritable jam of demands for money at the interstate commerce commission. The carriers have lost no time in pre-empting claims for partial payments of sums due them under the federal guaranty. At the commission, a large force of experts was engaged upon the accumulated work. The claims are to be certified as speedily as possible to relieve many of the carriers of present financial difficulty. Some of the roads, unable to meet their fixed operating charges, count upon these payments to partly relieve their credit strain. During the week the payment certified probably will reach as high as $50,000,000. Officials estimated that by the middle of April total payments, representing partial sums found to be due the roads, may aggregate $200,000,000. Officials of the commission also arranged to hurry forward the payments to the roads under other sections of the act, authorizing loans out of the revolving fund set aside by congress. ## HAMON'S WIDOW TO DEMAND FULL MEASURE OF LAW

Forsaken Wife Expected to Invoke Vengeance Against Alleged Slayer of Husband

BY MILDRED MORRIS,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

COURTROOM, ARDMORE, Ok., March 14.—An eye for an eye, the vengeance law of ages, was to come into play today in the sensational murder trial of Clara Smith Hamon, when Mrs. Jake L. Hamon, widow of the slain oil king, takes the witness stand in a desperate effort to convict the "other woman" of her husband's murder. The courtroom was tense with expectation of the dramatic battle of wits against mistress—one woman seeking vengeance on another because of a man whom they both loved.

The most sensational testimony so far brought out at the trial is expected when Frank Ketch, administrator of the Hamon estate goes under cross examination. Through J. H. Edwards, of Topeka, Kansas, president of a life insurance company, the state expects to impeach the defendant's statement that she was only 17 when she yielded to the advances of Hamon.

Smith Woman's Age in Doubt. Edwards has been ordered to produce an insurance policy carried by the defendant in his company, which, according to the prosecution, records her present age as 29 instead of 27, as she claimed.

Sam Blair, newspaper correspondent who found the accused woman in Mexico, is another witness scheduled to be called during the day. The defense regards him as the prosecution's most important witness.

Attorney General S. P. Freeling expressed confidence that the state would be able to close its case today. According to C. A. Coker, chief counsel for the defendant, the defense may require a week to present its evidence. The length of the trial depends on the number of witnesses each side calls in rebuttal.

DECLARES HE BOUGHT STOCK AND THEN INFORMED DAVIES

"Why didn't you testify about it before?"

"Because it just came to my mind."

He said he first bought small amounts of mining stocks on his own account as early as 1901. He began buying on orders from the bank's customers in 1905, doing business through the First National Bank of Cleveland. In 1914 the arrangement was made to buy through Otis & Co., and all transactions, including the bank's customers', his own, Davies' and the two jointly, went through their hands. When they delivered the stock it was paid for by draft. When the draft was paid a charge slip was made and if the customer had not appeared to take the stock a charge slip was made and it was carried as cash.

"Give me one instance when stock was bought by Davies?"

"A small block of Standard Oil stock in 1916."

"Was it bought and then paid for with his own money?"

"No sir, it was not."

"You have been given every opportunity to go over the bank's books up to the present time, haven't you?"

"No sir, I haven't seen the bank's books since I left."

"Was there any record of any other stock bought by Davies or both of you?"

"Yes, he invested in 1,500 shares of copper stock that amounted to $7,000."

"In his name?"

"Yes sir."

"What other stock was he interested in?"

Destroyed Stock Slips. "All dividend paying stock bought in 1916-17-18, it was in the name of both of us."

"Have you any record of them?"

"No sir, the slips have been destroyed. We operated secretly and kept no record of them."

"Did Davies buy any further stocks?"

"Yes sir, over a hundred times."

"Can you get a record of them from Otis & Co. books?"

"I can if they have not been destroyed."

"You know the bank examiner testified that there was no such record, do you not?"

"No sir, and I think I can find them by going to their office."

The witness then testified to the various shortages that existed in what he said was the joint account of Treble & Davies, running from 1916 up to 1918 up to $20,000 in 1917; then $60,000 in December 1918.

In November 1918, they were $74,000 short, mostly on copper stock.

"Did you sell any stock before you went to the hospital at that time?"

"No sir, but Davies did."

"Did he tell you he did?"

"No sir."

"Why do you say he did, then?"

"Because he took care of the business while I was gone."

Tricks to Shake His Story. Attorney Boyd continued to grill Treble with a view of attempting to show that Treble did the heavy stock buying without consulting or with the knowledge of Davies.

Questions showed that Davies was on his vacation July 9-21, when Treble is alleged to have delivered heavily in the purchases of stock. The defense said there were 34 separate purchases of stock during July, 1919, the month that stocks started a rapid and sharp decline which resulted in the crash which culminated about August 2.

Treble admitted purchasing $5,000,000 worth of stock during July, of which $1,000,000 was for the so-called joint account of Davies and Treble. The big purchases of stock on July 31 and August 1, 1919, Treble admitted, were made without the knowledge of Davies. Treble declaring in the cross-examination that he told Davies of the transactions afterwards.

Attorney Boyd questioned Treble failed to get a satisfactory answer that prior to July, 1919, Treble had never signed a stock buying draft for as much as $100,000.

Treble testified that earlier in 1919 a joint profit of $36,000 was divided between himself and Davies, $18,000 going to Davies and $18,000 to himself. At this time Treble said he had a deficit of $5,000 which he wiped out and that Davies applied $15,000 to the deficit to him.

Deficit Grows. Treble said the joint account had a deficit of $60,000 on July 1, 1919. Treble said he thought the shortage on August 6, 1919, was $90,000. The bank examiner's report showed a shortage of approximately $110,000. Attorney Boyd received corroborative answer from Treble that the $242,000 worth of stock purchased on July 31, 1919, sustained a loss of $25,668.58 and the purchase of $558,000 worth of stock on Aug. 1 sustained a loss of $62,004.21, making a total loss for the two transactions of $87,672.79. Treble said that the shortage was reduced because of profits made on one or two purchases during the month. Boyd said the purchase of International Continental Rubber Co. stock sustained a further loss of $15,338.23. Treble said that $120,000 profit was made on the purchase of 3,000 shares of Marine common.

Denies $100,000 Story.

Treble denied that her had told Leon Evans, teller at the City Bank, Lorain, where the irregularities occurred, that he would stop when he had acquired a profit of $100,000 in speculation. Treble also denied that Evans told him he had better quit when Treble reported that he had "cleaned up" $60,000.

Treble told how cards were withdrawn to cover up shortages and how drafts were drawn to cover up shortages prior to an investigation of the books by bank examiners. Treble admitted extracting the cards without instructions from Davies but said he informed Davies of what he had done in each case at the close of the banking day on which these irregularities were made. Treble said the first savings were withdrawn in 1917, the total number of cards withdrawn in all the irregular transactions number 15, according to the questions fired at Treble.

Treble denied that he had told Leon Evans that Davies had bawled him out for irregular transactions. Treble said Davies overheard him ordering stocks by phone and Treble stated that Davies cautioned him about buying too heavily.

Treble admitted that he had met a member of the Worthington, Bellows Co., stock brokers, at a baseball game at Cleveland, July 26, 1919, at which time Treble said he promised to give the representative some business from Lorain.

The cross-examination of Treble was expected to be completed late this afternoon.

Wilbert Robinson, genial manager of the champion Brooklyn National News Service today from the New Orleans training camp.

Good Night Stories

MRS. WADDLE DUCK'S TALE.

MAMA YELLOW HEN and her fifteen baby chicks stood on the bank of the stream, their eyes open as wide as saucers, watching Mama Waddle Duck and her nine little fluffy chicks paddling around in the water.

"Please, mama, can't we go in, too?" "Please, mama, can't we go in, too?" "Please, mama, can't we go in, too?"

"Well, I'll be cursed!" he ejaculated after a long stare in which he cleverly registered unbounded amazement, as well as gathering wrath. "So you think I'm about to embark on a skin game, do you? Nice opinion you've got of me, haven't you? Suppose you tell me just what you'd do in the way of restoring this dining room if you were running things. Come, let's have the benefit of that wonderful business head of yours!"

The mockery of his eyes was intensified by the cutting sneer in his voice. It slashed straight through all the good resolutions I had made to let nothing ruin my temper.

"If I were 'running things,' as you so courteously express it," I said loftily, "I would call in the decorator who did the room and have him do it over exactly as it was before."

"Look here," he said with the quick contradiction which often follows his ugly moods. "I suppose I was a bit rough just now, but you can't know how ridiculous your proposition is. Now just listen to me while I talk to you in words of one syllable."

He was smiling down at me and, as usual, I couldn't resist smiling back at him. But underneath the smile lay still the menace of the stinging words and manner he had used. They could not be rubbed out so easily.

"From your description of that dame," Dicky began sarcastically, "I can tell she's the kind that's going to make a howl anyway on general principles. And with that sort of people the more you do for them the more they suspect your motive. They simply can't understand anyone trying to be honorable in business."

heroically repressed the desire to tell him that other people's principles, or lack of them, were no excuse for the lowering of our own standards, and listened to him as attentively as if I approved everything he was saying.

"Now," he went on, "that woman of course has the general scheme of decoration firmly fixed in her mind. You do it once, figure out some fraud or something. While I'll wait that Jim and I will fix it up so she'll never know the difference. Besides, you know those old fellows who did the work are so busy at this season that you can't get them to look at your job. Don't you see?"

"Do you want me to be frank?" I asked. Dicky took his head in his hands and began to pace up and down the room.

"That's the last straw!" "Frank!" he exclaimed. "That's the last straw! When people ask you if you want them to be frank, you say yes—good night! You can be the last person to see me. I'll be back with an earful of unpleasant poppycock."

"In that case," I said smiling, for I was determined not to get into an altercation with him. "perhaps I'd better—"

"Oh, go on! Spill it!" he said irritably. "I'm not exactly a throtler of speech, you know."

"Well, then," I said quietly, "I don't agree with you, but I am perfectly willing to abide by your decision—to acquiesce in it. If you'd rather I'd put it that way. After all, it's your affair rather than mine. You conducted the negotiations for the sale of the house. The only part I have in it is the signing of my name, so really, you're the one who's responsible for the results. You're the one who's responsible for the results. You're the one who's responsible for the results."

"If you wish to put it that way—yes," I returned frigidly. "But there's one thing you won't relinquish," he retorted, "and that's your membership in the 'I told you so' club. That will be paid up to date, and you'll have the little hammer all polished up and ready to swing on my head if I return frigidly."

"He was fast working himself into a temper and my own nerves were ready to snap so tautly were they drawn. But the striking of the clock which Kaddy had set going in the kitchen brought me to a realization of the social duties before us. The bride's home-coming must not be marred by a conjugal row on our part. On her account, I did what I have never done before—I played the role of a meek, coaxing wife. When I did not feel the part, going up to Dicky, I slipped my arms around his neck."

"Don't be cross," I said. "There'll be no hammer and no 'I told you so' club. Kiss me, and then let's hurry and dress."

He held me off from him and looked steadily, quizzically at me until my eyes felt and I felt the hot count mount into my cheeks. "You feel hot, like kissing me," he said mockingly. "You'd much rather exercise that fist of yours. But I never decline a lady's challenge."

and kissed me, smiling half-tenderly, half-maliciously when he had done so. "Now there won't be any danger of a row in it if you'd rather I'd put it that way. After all, it's your affair rather than mine. You conducted the negotiations for the sale of the house. ### How Dicky "Came Back" at Madge.

DICKY thrust his hands deep into his pockets, a trick of his when he is exasperated, and glared at me.

"Well, I'll be cursed!" he ejaculated after a long stare in which he cleverly registered unbounded amazement, as well as gathering wrath. "So you think I'm about to embark on a skin game, do you? Nice opinion you've got of me, haven't you? Suppose you tell me just what you'd do in the way of restoring this dining room if you were running things. Come, let's have the benefit of that wonderful business head of yours!"

The mockery of his eyes was intensified by the cutting sneer in his voice. It slashed straight through all the good resolutions I had made to let nothing ruin my temper.

"If I were 'running things,' as you so courteously express it," I said loftily, "I would call in the decorator who did the room and have him do it over exactly as it was before."

"Look here," he said with the quick contradiction which often follows his ugly moods. "I suppose I was a bit rough just now, but you can't know how ridiculous your proposition is. Now just listen to me while I talk to you in words of one syllable."

YOUR HEALTH

What You Ought to Do About Dropsy Symptoms

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Commissioner of Health, New York City

NATURE is kindly disposed. It is rare indeed for her to go to us hammer and tongs. Before passing sentence of hopeless and incurable disease, she gives us ample warning. She puts out unmistakable danger signals.

The difference between a wise man and a fool is indicated by his attitude toward these symptoms. No head-in-the-sand response will suffice.

In certain conditions the fluid substance of the blood escapes into the soft tissues of the body. When this happens in some one place, for instance in the ankles or in the eyelids, we call it "edema." If it is found all over the body, it is called "anasarca." If the fluid fills one of the cavities it is known as "dropsy." If by chance it is the abdominal cavity which is thus affected, it is called "ascites."

Any dropsical condition should command attention. Every such symptom deserves immediate consideration, because it indicates something wrong in one or more of the essential organs.

There are many causes for these disturbances. The seriousness of the symptoms depends upon the cause. In some instances the underlying trouble is one to be viewed with concern. On the contrary, other causes are most favorable, and a speedy return to perfect health may be expected.

In Bright's disease there is failure on the part of the kidneys to function properly. The amount of urine is limited, and the fluids of the body seem to pour out into the soft tissues. The affected parts are swollen. On pressure of the finger the skin and underlying tissues fail to fling back into place when released. There remains a pit, because the tissues are boggy and water-soaked. All natural elasticity is lost.

In extreme cases the skin may actually rupture, and from the broken surface fluid will ooze.

Usually, then, local edema indicates trouble with the kidneys. In some cases of swollen ankles, however, the cause may be edema of the feet. Every case of edema, especially if persistent, or if it recurs frequently, gives abundant reason for visiting the family doctor.

General edema, or "anasarca," is associated with various heart disturbances.

Among the causes of "ascites" are inflammation of the lining membrane of the abdomen and certain diseases of the liver, of course, kidney and heart disease may have this form of dropsy as a symptom.

You will be impressed, I am sure, with the importance of all these various forms of edema or dropsy. Suffice it to say that the eyelids, swelling of the ankles, difficulty in walking—the shoes—these are all early indications of the same thing.

Careful diet, the right sort of exercise, correction of certain organic defects and the building up of your general health will remove the immediate symptoms and return you to normal condition. You must not trust to your own skill, however. You need the helpful care of your doctor.

Answers to Health Questions
A GIRL. Q—Two joints of my spine at the base of my neck protrude, forming a large bump. I sleep on a thin pillow and try to hold my head up, but it seems to me as though the bump was getting larger. What would you advise?

A—Keeping the head erect and the shoulders straight will make the vertebrae less prominent. A skilled gymnast teacher may suggest some useful exercises after examining you.

SLATS. Q—I am 20 years of age and distressingly thin. I eat good food and get plenty of sleep, and do not worry. What can you suggest?

A—Eat plenty of good nourishing food and drink at least a quart of milk a day.

D. M. G. Q—How can I get rid of intestinal indigestion? I have been taking petroleum oil nightly for one or two months.

A—Correct your diet. Eat simple, well-cooked food. Have bran muffins and stewed fruits for breakfast. Continue taking the oil.

WINIFRED BLACK WRITES ABOUT Barefoot Time

Copyright, 1921, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

A LITTLE BOY stood at the window looking out into the driving rain.

The tall maples at the gate were grim and stark, and even the weeping willow didn't look like a willow at all—it was so bare of leaves and so ugly.

The wind moaned in the chimney, and in the corners of the garden there were still little patches of frost, but at the corner of the house the lilac bush began to show signs of spring.

There were no leaves and it was not yet really budding, but there was something promising about the color of the lilac bark, and though the wind swept the rain against the window in great spitting gusts, the little boy saw the lilac bush and his eyes grew very bright.

"Oh," he cried aloud, "barefoot time is coming after all!" And he began to hum and whistle under his breath, both together, in an odd little way he had—and all that day he was light-hearted and happy.

Barefoot time—what a lot it does mean to the little boy! He does hate shoes so—they make him feel lame, he says—and he is so sorry for the horses when he thinks of their heavy iron shoes. How can they walk at all?

And heavy coats he hates, and mufflers and rubbers—yes, even caps. What the little boy really likes, is to put on a pair of overalls and a shirt and run out into the garden and play pirate, or Indian, or aviator all day long without a thing on his head or on his little, brown, active feet.

I know exactly how he feels, don't you? It is not only the weight of the shoes he feels, it's the idea of them. To him, shoes and hats mean rain and snow, and overcoats and colds in the head, and staying in the house, and going to school and studying how many eight times nine is, and trying to pretend to be interested in what bounds Labrador on the north.

His shoes are like the prisoner's handcuffs—every time he looks at them he thinks of his lost liberty.

Dear little boy! Isn't he lucky to live in a family that believes in real boys, and in letting them have a "barefoot time"?

Some day he'll grow up, and then he'll have to wear shoes all summer no matter how hot it is. And he won't mind it so very much, for custom does strange things to us all.

But he will have to shave every day, and wear a stiff high collar, and pay dinner calls, and go to the opera and pretend he likes it, and be polite to people he can't endure, and go to dinners that bore him to tears, and make speeches that bore everyone else. I wonder if he will ever wish for "barefoot time" when those days come.

I'm wishing for it right now—"barefoot time"—the time of loosening conventions, the time of "do as you please"—the time of natural, simple living, without the telephone buzzing every instant, without the ringing of the doorbell, without the engagement list, without the thousand and one little handcuffs we put around our own wrists and keep there just to show the world that we can afford to buy them.

"Barefoot time!"

In Later Years

When my barefoot time comes, I'm going to twist my hair in a knot, and put on a loose gown and a pair of sandals, and have my lunch out on the back porch and invite the puppy to be among those present, and have some "1-2-3-4 cake" and some hasty pudding and milk in the blue bowl, and some ginger cookies from the brown earthen jar. And I'm going to reach up and pull down a spray of lilacs and bury my face in them, and forget all about clubs and programs, and visiting lists and obligations of every sort, whatsoever, and whomsoever—and I'm going to take my "barefoot time" clear from the soul out.

Whew, what a gust! What are you trying to do, Sir Boreas, shake the house down?

Will it ever be real summer again? Yes, see—the lilac is beginning to bud. Hurrah! "Barefoot time" is on the way!

THE HOME KITCHEN

By JEANNETTE YOUNG NORTON

Author of "Mrs. Norton's Cook Book"

Some Economical Ways of Cooking Steaks.

STEAKS and chops seem to be the standbys of young housekeepers who have but a limited knowledge of cooking. This is to be deplored, for they generally waste all that is not eaten at the first meal.

Steaks have been, and still are, selling at prices considerably advanced over five or six days ago, so unless every scrap of the meat is eaten they may be an extravagance to buy.

A porterhouse steak is not extravagant for two if it is treated in the following way:

Have the butcher cut off the flank end and chop it for a hamburger steak for the second day. Also have him carefully cut out the big bone, then with skewers pin the choice part of the steak together ready for broiling.

The bones with a small can of tomatoes, an onion, a carrot, the outer stalks of the table celery, a little parsley, a diced potato, a pint of water, seasoning and a couple of tablespoonsful of rice will make a delicious every scrap of the meat is eaten they may be an extravagance to buy.

The hamburger steak may be seasoned and shaped into four cakes, or left in a single pat. Fry a thinly sliced onion in vegetable fat or butter until a delicate brown, then lay the steak on top, cover and cook until the steak is done. Then lift it to a hot dish, add a half-cupful of stock, left from the soup, or the same amount of cream, slightly thickened with a little browned flour.

Stuffed Flank Steak

Select a thick flank steak and have the butcher make a pocket for stuffing. Prepare a savory stuffing and fill the pocket, not too full. Brush the steak with a little melted butter, vegetable grease or olive oil, place it in a shallow buttered pan, pour in a cupful of stock, cover and set in a hot oven. Baste the steak often and uncover for a few minutes to brown lightly. Lift to a hot dish, add a little water to the dish, gravy, and chicken slightly. Add a quarter of a cupful of coarsely chopped olives and turn over the steak. This steak may be broiled over a good bed of coals if the stuffing is of oysters or a very thin mixture that will cook quickly for the steak will also be delicious if it is quickly broiled without being stuffed.

Steak en Casserole

Take a good piece of top-round or sirloin steak, well streaked with fat, and cut in pieces two inches wide and three inches long. Lay the steak in a buttered casserole dish, after rubbing it over with butter, dusting with pepper, salt and dredging with a little flour. Add two cupfuls of little potato balls, one thinly sliced onion, and one and a half cupfuls of drained, canned peas. Now take a cupful of well-seasoned stock and pour over all. Cover and cook for an hour or more in a steady oven. Serve with boiled rice in the casserole.

Steak Pie

Line a deep, well-buttered pie dish with a good crust. Take a pound and a quarter of top-round, flank, pinbone or sirloin steak, and have it cut into inch square pieces. Put them in the pie dish with half a pound of prepared mushrooms, a grated onion, a salted pepper, a teaspoonful of sugar and a cupful of rich stock. Dredge with browned flour, with little lumps of butter, put on the top crust, having a vent out in it, and bake for an hour, covering it the first half-hour so the pie will not brown before it is done through.

Chesterfield

Spread four slices of buttered toast with finely chopped steak, dust with pepper and salt, and dot with butter. Put under the broiler, and let it cook from five to eight minutes. Have ready a cream sauce, not too thick, and make each slice with it, placing a teaspoonful of currant jelly on top of each slice. Garnish with sprays of parsley. This makes a good breakfast or luncheon dish as well as an inexpensive one.

A Charming Party Dress for a Young Girl

There seems to be no end to the different uses to which ribbon is put. Its value has long been recognized as a trimming, but in the accompanying illustration the dainty party dress is made entirely of pompadour ribbon.

The ribbon is of a lovely quality and delicate pink and blue predominates. It is so wide that three and a half widths make the skirt which is really bouffant.

A clever arrangement is noted on the corsage. Two folds of silver ribbon are set about the waistline and clustered on one side are three handsome roses of flame, pink and American Beauty gills.

When You May Use Creams With Good Beauty Results

By LUCREZIA BORI

The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

SOMETIMES a woman wonders as to whether it is wise to use some cream for the complexion. There are, of course, many arguments both for and against its use. However, no young woman should start applying creams unless she has a skin defect in her skin makes a question of its use imperative. If, with the woman, when the face is to be exposed to intense cold, it is well to apply a little protective cream before going outdoors, otherwise if the skin is extremely fine it may become chapped.

Young people should never make a practice of smearing their faces with the various face creams that are so often recommended as beautifiers. They are healthy their well-being will be reflected in the fine, clear texture of their skin.

As women grow older and the skin loses the suppleness of youth, creams may be applied with good effect, as they help to nourish the skin. But cream should never be kept on during the night, unless there is a particular reason for so doing.

Cream closes the tiny gland openings, thus preventing the proper functioning of the skin. Through the tiny pores the perspiration passes, and in this way the waste products are carried off. Sealed by the steady application of cream, great heat may come to the complexion as well as to the general health.

The following formula makes an excellent cream that will protect the face well against the onslaughts of blistering winds which often come in spring.

White wax..... 20 grams
Olive oil..... 20 grams
Glycerine..... 20 grams
Essence of rose..... 5 drops
Orange flower water..... 5 drops
Glycerine..... 5 drops
A few drops of perfume as desired.

Melt the wax and olive oil. Then add the oil of sweet almonds. Gradually add the orange flower water, glycerine and oil of rose.

Before going outdoors apply a very thin coating of this cream to your face. Remember to rub the cream well into your skin, then, before you go out, take a soft cloth and remove all the superfluous cream. Some women add the finest dusting of powder, as they think it gives a softer texture to the skin. Be sure, however, upon your return to remove every vestige of the cream.

Another protective cream may be compounded from the following:

Camphorated Cold Cream.
Oil of sweet almonds..... 5 fluid ounces
White wax..... 1 ounce
Spermaceti..... 1 ounce
Camphor..... 1 ounce
Rose water..... 5 fluid ounces
Borax (in fine powder)..... 4 grams
Oil of rose..... 10 drops

Melt the spermaceti and the wax. Next add the oil of sweet almonds in which the camphor has been dissolved by very gentle heat. Gradually add the rose water. In which you have previously dissolved the borax. As you mix all these ingredients together, the mixture will become cold. At this stage add the oil of rose and put in stone jars until you desire to use it.

The best way to apply cream is to use a little piece of absorbent, sterilized cotton or a bit of soft, old linen.

ADVICE TO GIRLS

By ANNIE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: I am a girl of 13. I met a boy four years my senior about six months ago. I love this boy dearly, and would be willing to marry him, but here is my problem:

He never told me he was engaged to another girl until he asked me to marry him. He said he didn't care for the other girl at all since he had met me, and that he was going to break the engagement. I have heard that this girl thinks the world of him.

If this is true it would hurt her terribly if he should break the engagement. I know how I would feel myself, but, dear Annie Laurie, I don't see how I can give him up now. Please help me if you can.

BEFORE you are condemned for hearing to love you, he should have freed himself before proposing marriage to you. You should not now give him further encouragement until he goes to the other girl and makes a clean breast of the matter. It is unfortunate that she should be made to suffer

Six Reels of Joy at The Colonial

Charles Chaplin in a scene from "THE KID"

ELYRIA, March 14.—It was a critical audience that gathered last night at the Colonial Theatre to witness the premier showing in this city of Charlie Chaplin's latest film, "The Kid." They were aware that "The Kid" ran six reels, nearly three times the length of the ordinary Chaplin picture, and there were many who were frankly skeptical as to whether the comedian could stand on the screen that long at one time without providing a surfeit.

This reviewer was one of the doubtful ones. He had always felt that Chaplin was like the salad in a dinner menu—very delicious but hardly substantial enough for a complete meal. We even pleaded guilty of having prejudiced the film, and were going to write a clever review for it in the form of a time table with full expectations that we could use many ditto marks after the first half hour. With this in mind we took out our watch "that tells time in the dark" when the title flashed on the screen. It was just 9:38 p. m.

The next time we looked at our watch it was 10:42 p. m. We blinked our way out of the luxuriant home where the story of "The Kid" ended back to a consciousness that we were seated in a theatre, that the lights were on, that the show was over. We remembered laughing so heartily it is a wonder that we maintained a hold on the watch, and we also were conscious of the fact that our cheeks must show traces of tears. Our watch told us it was six reels. It might have been one reel or twenty reels, for we were unconscious of the passage of time while the mirth-provoking, heart-rending story of "The Kid" was unfolded on the screen.

The attempt to give the story of "The Kid" would be as impertinent on our part as for an art critic to include his own sketches of masterpieces. We haven't the ability of Chaplin to make people cry and laugh at the same time. When you go to see "The Kid" loosen your clothing at the waist, for you will find your greatest capacity for laughing, and put a clean "hanky" in your pocket, for it will have a shred of human pity in you there are scenes that will bring the tears to your eyes.

Strand Attraction Starting Tomorrow

ENID BENNETT and WILLIAM CONKLIN in a scene from the THOMAS H. INCE Production, "HAIRPINS," A PARAMOUNT ARTCRAFT PICTURE

ELYRIA, March 14.—Powderuffs and rouge—those delightful aids to the feminine conquest meant nothing in the young life of Muriel Rossmore. It didn't matter much to her whether her hair was knotted or streaming down on her shoulders in shapeless array. She was just an old fashioned and ultra domestic housewife.

So, that's why her husband, Rex, found pleasure in his associations with his pretty stenographer while Muriel remained at home to cook at the high cost of living. But when Muriel discovered her husband's desire for daintiness and pretty clothes, it became quite a different matter. She would show him! And she did.

"Hairpin," Thomas H. Ince's Paramount Artcraft photoplay starring Enid Bennett, a penetrating story of domestic life, written by J. Gardner Sullivan, will be shown at the Strand Theatre for two days, beginning tomorrow. Miss Bennett has never had a more appealing role than that which she portrays in this delightful picture, while Matt Moore in the role of Mr. Rossmore, gives an excellent characterization of the discontented husband.

'The Scuttlers' Now Showing Dreamland

ELYRIA, March 14.—"The Scuttlers," in which William Farnum opened yesterday at the Dreamland Theatre, is an absorbing and sensational story of the sea. William Fox, the producer, must have gone to great expense to put this story on the screen. A 250-foot ship is used for most of the scenes, and this vessel is sunk far out in the Pacific, after a series of dramatic incidents that are gripping in the extreme.

The story is that of a man who is hired to ship as a sailor in order to learn if the captain is guilty, as suspected, of scuttling his ships for the insurance. To avoid suspicion Farnum, as Jim Landers, allows himself to be shanghaied. He finds himself under a brutal first mate, and the mate at once shows that he dislikes Landers more than anyone else on board. Soon Erickson, the mate, beats a boy and Landers knocks him down—for which Landers is promptly put in irons. But his position is not so bad as it might be, because the captain's daughter, Laura—played by Miss Jackie Saunders—comes to his aid with food and a file.

After Erickson has scuttled the ship, and as the water is pouring into the hold, Erickson discovers Landers. A terrific fight ensues in the hold. Erickson is killed and Landers escapes from the sinking vessel because Laura guides him to the lifeboat.

More thrills come while the survivors are on a desert island. "The Scuttlers" is not only a very entertaining picture, but a very powerful drama, with a powerful actor as its hero.

PETROGRAD IS 'CLOSED SHOP' CITY

CHICAGO, March 14.—Russia is a nation in ruins. Its cities are desolate and half-deserted, its industry is dead, money worthless. Its people are occupied mainly in keeping life in their bodies.

This is the tragic story brought back from Europe by T. T. Pingree. Mr. Pingree learned the truth of the Russian situation from Otto Trevelin, a German, who has lived in Russia since 1900 and is now manager of a joint stock bank operated under the Red dictatorship.

"Petrograd, once one of the most splendid cities in Russia, is now only a ghost of its former self," said Mr. Pingree. "Trevelin told me that its people have disappeared, no one knows where. Factories that once employed 5,000 men now have 300. Few shops remain open. For miles along the business streets stores are nailed up and vacant, their empty show windows suggesting so many gleaming death's heads."

Once wealthy persons stand on the street corners and sell their last belongings for food. The purchasers are soldiers, sailors, commissioners, who are the ruling classes, and speculators and tradesmen. Little money changes hands. The sellers demand food or clothing. An extensive but secret trade in jewels is carried on. These gems have been looted from the palaces of the old nobility. They are as good as money. Fortunately the man who has a diamond. It represents one of the few stable values in the universal wreckage. It is a permanent asset whose value remains practically the same in all countries of the world."

American Theater Has Good Bill

ELYRIA, March 14.—George Stewart, brother of the beautiful and talented Anita, is also climbing the ladder of success in the motion picture world. He has the most important role of his screen career in "Old Dad," playing as Mildred Harris Chaplin's leading man in her new First National starring vehicle.

Inspired by his sister's remarkable success as a star, George has carefully prepared himself for a career in the silent drama. Heretofore he has played only minor parts in cinema productions. George Stewart's growing talent and progress, however, came under the direction of Director Lloyd Ingraham who decided that he would make an ideal lead for Mrs. Chaplin in her new photoplay.

BOLSHEVIK GOVERNMENT IS WEAKENING, SAYS RUSSIAN AUTHOR

(International News Service)

COLUMBUS, March 14.—"The apparent facts are conclusive, I think, that the Bolsheviki Government is weakening," said Dr. Gregory Zilboorg, Russian author and newspaper editor of Petrograd and Kely, who addressed the Columbus Art Club here.

"The Bolsheviki are not fighting. They are ruling by force—many are being executed, many are being imprisoned—and when a government rules by force it is not popular," he continued.

"There are two Russias, one inside and one outside. Generally speaking most of the intellectuals are outside—2,000,000 of them."

Dr. Zilboorg expressed belief that in a short time the Constitutional Assembly organized under the temporary government of Premier Kerensky, which met at Paris recently, will meet within the borders of its native land to lay the foundation for a permanent democratic government.

Germany Must Pay Huge Sum To the Allies

PARIS, March 14.—The allied and economic penalties imposed upon Germany will entail charges of 2,062,250,000 gold marks annually upon the German people or more than the annual indemnity demand under the Paris reparations pact. Germany will have to pay the cost of the new military occupations of German soil by the allies as well as the old occupations that were already in effect. The cost of operating the customs houses upon the Rhine (which were seized by the allies) also will fall upon Germany and this will mean a burden of 600,000 gold marks annually. It is estimated that the customs income to the allies will be only 150,000,000 gold marks annually.

NORTH ROBINSON, March 14.—When Frank Moore hitched his horse at its accustomed place at the village elevator Sunday night and started for church, he forgot the cistern in the elevator yard. Stepping into the cistern he received a thorough drenching. For the first time in many years, he was late to church as he had to drive back home again and change his clothing.

BELLAIRE, March 14.—A Greek employed for two years in a local mill saved for two years so as to bring his sweet heart here to wed him. She arrived at Ellis Island where they are said to have been married. She came here. Plans for a Greek religious wedding were under way when she refused to go through with the ceremony. She wants to return to her native land. The husband, much older than the bride, claimed to have spent over $1,000 on her. Both have engaged lawyers.

It will be the aim of the club to hear discussions on every phase of the matter so that a thorough understanding of what the board of education is doing and just what is the sentiment of the people regarding this issue.

The financial situation has an important bearing upon the question. A new high school building is needed but can the town afford to drive a new model with a silver in come? On the other hand is there any other better way of spending money than in providing our children with the best possible facilities for mental and physical development?

The club will also discuss a matter presented to the club Tuesday by George Downer of Cleveland who is president of the Ohio Battery company. ## SHE NEVER FELT BETTER IN LIFE

"I don't believe I ever felt better in my life than I have since Taulac relieved my stomach trouble," said Mrs. Opal Brannan, of Toledo, Ohio.

"I began to suffer dreadfully from indigestion about six months ago, and no matter how careful I was about eating I had awful pains in the pit of my stomach. The food just seemed to roll up in a ball that felt heavy as lead, and it would be hours before I could get any relief."

"At night I seldom got any rest to speak of, and would get up in the morning feeling tired and miserable. I nearly always had a brassy taste in my mouth. I used to dread my housework, it was such a burden to me in my weakened condition. Several of my neighbors had been so benefited by Taulac I decided to take it, and I certainly did for me every thing they said it would."

"My digestion is perfect now, and all my troubles have disappeared. Not only that, but there is something about Taulac that makes a person feel fine all the time. I am just full of energy now and my housework doesn't bother me a bit. In fact, I enjoy it. I have Taulac far above any medicine I ever tried and I don't believe its equal has ever been made."

Taulac is sold in Elyria by Adolphus J. Ebert.—Adv't.

GRAND OPERA ATTRACTS ELYRIA MUSICAL LOVERS

ELYRIA, March 14.—Many Elyria musical lovers will go to Cleveland this week to attend the operas given by the Chicago Opera Association. Unusual interest centers about Mary Garden, who not only sings, but is also director of this great organization.

Miss Garden will open the season in the title role of an opera new to Cleveland, Verdi's "Monna Vanna." The libretto is based on the like-named play of Maeterlinck. The story is intensely dramatic, the music, by all accounts, is vivid and stirring, and the opera is a stand-by of the Chicago repertory.

Lucien Murgatroy, the great French tenor, will be in the cast, as will also the baritone, George Maklanoff, remembered for his fine singing and acting in performances given by the Boston Opera Company at the Hippodrome some years ago.

Tuesday evening will bring Wagner's "Lohengrin," with Rosa Raisa, acclaimed the foremost dramatic soprano of the day, as Elsie, Cyprien Van Gordon, a mezzo soprano new to Cleveland, as Ortrud; Edward Johnson, the American tenor who sang with telling effect last season in "The Love of the Three Kings," as Lohengrin, and George Baklanoff, as Telramund. The opera will be sung in English.

Lovers of lyric songs are not to be slighted. Wednesday evening comes the incomparable Amelita Galli-Curci, in Verdi's "La Traviata."

It is enough to say that the name of the Verdi opera is one that Mme. Galli-Curci takes especial pleasure in singing. She will be supported by the tenor Forrest Lamont, as Alfredo, and by Giacomo Rimini in the role of Germont.

There will be incidental dances by Andreas Pavley and ballet. In the performance of Verdi's "Rigoletto," which closes the engagement on Thursday night, Tita Ruffo will portray the title role in which he has won sensational successes in Chicago and New York.

Marcella Crest, who will be the Glidia in an accomplished American singer, well known to Clevelanders.

Alessandro Bonci, one of the most artistic singers to be heard on the operatic stage, will assume the role of the phylandering duke.

The "Ballet of the Hours," from the opera, "La Gioconda," will be given after the conclusion of the Verdi opera, as added attraction.

Georgio Polacco will conduct "Monna Vanna" and "La Traviata."

The productions of "Lohengrin" and "Rigoletto" will be given under the direction of Pietro Cimini.

Mr. and Mrs. William Masterton, Miss Winifred Mener, Mrs. John Faxon and Mr. Richard Faxon, will have "Monna Vanna" tonight, Mr. and Mrs. George Snyder and Mrs. Karl Puetz will attend the opera on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings.

The attendance upon the Communion Service yesterday morning in the Methodist church was by far the largest in the history of the church. Mr. Lovett of Cleveland, sang solos that were beautifully appropriate and most impressive. "The King of Love My Shepherd Is," was finely interpreted by the choir and a better selection could not have been made for the occasion.

Dr. Winter's Meditation and the entire ritual from beginning to end made a profound impression upon a congregation that nearly filled the church upstairs and down. It was an auspicious beginning of the series of meetings that will culminate with Easter. The Sunday school, Epworth League and the evening worship were full of interest and called forth record breaking crowds. Dr. Winter's subject tonight is "Christ Crucified" and the song, "I Have Found a Great Savior" will be sung.

DAME FASHION REVIVES ART OF HAND EMBROIDERY

That the art of hand embroidery is again coming into its own is significant with the showing of the new Spring and Summer dresses. These two Jesso models, which were handmade by French peasant girls, are striking examples of the latest creations. The one on the left still retains the straight lines, which were so prominent last year, yet with its kimono effect sleeves and deep-cut collar, reflects a distinctive individuality. The other is a charming frock of white voile with figured waist and accented plaited panelled skirt, separated by hand embroidery, which makes a striking afternoon frock.

FEATHERED FRIENDS

Series of Articles Contributed by Members Of Home Economics Department of the Woman's Civic Club

The Killdeer. The Killdeer is known as one of our best shore birds. They breed throughout the United States and Canada, and winter in the central part of the United States, and in South America. His food is varied, and consists entirely of animal matter. He devours all kinds of beetles such as alfalfa weevil, cottonboll weevil, clover-root weevil, clover-leaf weevil, billbugs, white grubs, wire worms and leaf weevil. Also cotton worms, cotton cutworms, horse flies, mosquitoes, cattle ticks, grasshoppers, ants, bugs, caddis flies, dragon flies, centipedes, spiders, snails, crabs and oyster and earth worms.

Quite a variety of meat for one small stomach, but every bird must eat until the stomach is so crammed that it will hold no more, so that he may keep that wonderful engine of digestion up to fullest capacity, to sustain his great energy.

BACK TO NORMALCY IN MORALS IS SLOGAN IN MISSOURI NOW

(By International News Service.) KANSAS CITY, March 14.—Back to normalcy in morals. This is the 1921 slogan of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, according to Mrs. Nellie G. Burger, Missouri state president. The W. C. T. U., while watching hip flasks, parlor stills and "blind tigers," will turn its attention to a crusade for social morality, says Mrs. Burger.

"The pendulum already is swinging back to temperance in morals—even in saneness of woman's dress," Mrs. Burger added. "We had about reached the climax of nakedness in the latter. Recently in Chicago I actually saw a woman with a dress above her knees—above, mind you, and her stockings were rolled down below the knee, leaving her knees bare to the wind."

"It is bad enough when young girls dress this way, but when their mothers and grandmothers even, do so, it is unspeakable."

Mrs. Burger denied that the W. C. T. U. backed "blue law" legislation or anti-cigarette crusades. "We will not and have not backed such legislation," she added. "We are not out to take away all the rights and pleasures which men possess."

The police in Toledo locked him up and held him until the marshal from Oberlin came for him. He is now in the county jail awaiting the action of the next grand jury.

FAIR TREATMENT

"If the people of any given community give the public utility companies fair treatment and permit them to be successful it is a good advertisement for their city and makes it possible to raise additional capital for improving or expanding service there-in," says Guy Morris Walker in "The Nations Business." "If on the other hand, the public attitude toward public utilities drives them into bankruptcy, it not only deprives the people of that city of the service they have been getting, but it makes it impossible to raise capital to furnish the service that has been destroyed by unjust treatment. The people have not realized before that it is this very harsh treatment that is now making it difficult, if not impossible, to raise capital to take care of their demands for increasing service."

GIRLS WORKING WAY THROUGH COLLEGE

(By International News Service.)
CHICAGO, March 14.—Boys all over the world have worked their way through college. Now the girls are doing it, too. For despite the drop in the high cost of living, getting a university education still is expensive.
"Nearly 60 per cent of the 7,200 students at Northwestern are working their way through school," said President Walter Dill Scott.
The modern student is a good student. Some say that his father was the best—that is, the father who did—do—but the modern boys, and not forgetting the girls, are working their way through college by using their heads. Not so many young men now shovel snow and mend fences.
President Scott said a college education was easy to get in these days, because so many people were interesting themselves in education.
Professor Henry G. Gale, dean of the College of Science of the University of Chicago, said 55 per cent of the students were working their way through school.
"The jazz-hounds, greased hair boys and the all-night toddling crowd are in such a minority at this university that they receive publicity because of their rarity," he declared.
Figures show 55.5 per cent of all the men are paying their way through the University of Illinois entirely or in part. Of this number 9.2 per cent are bearing the entire expense. The remaining 43.7 per cent are earning part of their expenses.
According to a survey made by the Pan-Hellenic council from nineteen organizations, it costs approximately $900 a school year for students at the University of Illinois. It was found that the total expenses of the average student were from $750 to $850. This includes food, clothing, housing, educational expenses and incidentals.

VICTIM OF NIGHTMARE TAKES HIGH DIVE THROUGH WINDOW

DENVER, March 14.—Henry Lettau, thirty-one, has two outstanding characteristics—he is hard-headed and he doesn't like soldiers.
In an attempt to escape, in a dream, from soldiers, who were pursuing him also in a dream, Henry leaped through the window of his room on the second floor of a lodging house. Although he fell fifteen feet and landed head-first, most, Lettau incurred only minor injuries.
C. F. Norred, a special officer, heard a noise in Lettau's room as he was passing the door. Looking through the transom he saw Lettau rolling on the floor waving his arms and kicking vigorously. As Norred went to get assistance, he heard a loud crash and found Lettau sitting on the ground outside under the window, moaning.
Lettau had jumped through the window glass and suffered cuts about the head and face from the broken pane. He explained to the police surgeon that it all happened while he was dreaming.

CITIZENS INDEMNITY IN PICTURE PLAYS

(By International News Service.)
LONDON, March 14.—The medical officer of Nottingham created a sensation at the annual cinema trade dinner by declaring that there was too much immorality and indecency in picture plays.
"It does not pay in England," said the doctor. "The conscience of the country is better than its conduct and that is why the English people are called hypocrites."

Crops in Winter?

(By International News Service.)
PARIS, March 14.—To make the earth fruitful in winter is the object of researches now being pursued by M. Lumiere, who addressed the Academy of Science on the subject.
M. Lumiere's theory is that the soluble elements of autumn's dying grass and leaves render the winter soil sterile until they have been oxidized by oxygen washed into the earth by rain. On this belief he is founding his researches.

Mrs. Ben Sooy has returned home from Akron, leaving her father somewhat improved in health.

Carl Horner who lives in the northeast part of Wellington twp., is working for A. B. Smith.

Master Warren Taylor is visiting his grandparents.

Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Geth are in Litchfield for a short time. He is having the time of his life helping his grand father make maple syrup in the sugar bush.

The K. O. T. M. served warm sugar to their wives and children Friday evening, March 11, in the K. O. T. M. hall.

Frank Goth and son Leland and Clifton Betts attended the K. O. T. M. meeting in Elyria Saturday evening. The initiation of new members took place by a Cleveland team. Supper was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Merle Hastings will move into the Dick Buswell residence north of the center and not into the Congregational parsonage as once reported.

Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Hopkins visited in Spencer Saturday.

The Ladies' Missionary Society met Wednesday, March 9 at Society hall, Circle No. 4 served a fine dinner, with Mrs. F. E. Kleinhaus as chairman, assisted by Mrs. S. E. Naylor, Mrs. Jay Baylor, Mrs. Alonzo Taylor and Mrs. M. L. Hopkins. These society dinners are good for the school children for it gives them a warm dinner.

On Friday evening the boys' basketball team played the Wellington team at Society hall the score being 21 to 23 in favor of Penfield.

Alanson S. Welcher died at his home in Wellington Thursday noon. A short funeral service was held Friday afternoon at the home. Saturday his body was shipped to his old home in Port Huron, Mich., where funeral services were held on Monday, March 7. The widow, Mrs. A. S. Welcher, J. A. Devereaux and Mr. and Mrs. Mark Devereaux accompanied the body to Michigan.

Mrs. A. S. Welcher was a former resident of Penfield and is the mother of Mark Devereaux.

Mr. and Mrs. Louie Taylor of Penfield were happily surprised on Sunday, Feb. 27, when about 30 friends gathered at their home to remind them of their third wedding anniversary. All came with well filled baskets and a sumptuous dinner was served at noon to which all did ample justice. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor were presented with a beautiful gift which was greatly appreciated and will always be a kind reminder of the occasion. All had a most enjoyable time, and the day is one that will be long remembered by all present.

Following is a letter from one of our town boys who went west last fall for his health:

Dear friends: I left Phoenix, Ariz., on Feb. 10th for San Diego, Calif., on the Southern route down through Old Mexico, passed through twenty different tunnels, one which was a mile long. The roughest country a man could get into; one could look down the gulches for several hundred feet. We saw a wild cat climbing the mountains.

The train stopped at Mexicali but we were not allowed to get off. From there we went through the Imperial Valley. This is a fine farming land. Saw lots of alfalfa and wheat a foot high. Next we arrived at Tia Juana, this is just across the border from the United States. Large horse races are held here, beginning Dec. 1, and lasting until Decoration Day.

San Diego is located along San Diego Bay. Point Loma extends about two miles between the ocean and the bay. The Coronado Islands are just across from the point, just leaving room enough between the point and the islands for the large boats to enter the harbor.

At the present time there are about two hundred war vessels and torpedo boats in the harbor. It is quite a sight to see war fleet. Some times there are ten thousand sailors here at one time.

Balboa park is located just north of town. It contains 1,400 acres of land and the most beautiful flower gardens ever seen. All kinds of birds, ducks and wild animals are kept in the park. The Panama-California exposition in 1915 was held in this park. It is a wonderful sight to go through the buildings and see the different displays. Every afternoon a free musical entertainment is held at the Museum with an outdoor organ. The next California exposition beginning the first of next year, will be held at this park. The stadium adjoining the high school building is constantly used for assemblies, drills and athletics of all kinds. It is located in a natural amphitheatre site in a canyon on the hillside of Balboa park. It is constructed of concrete and steel, costing $150,000 and seats 30,000 people.

The climate here is fine, staying about the same all the year round, always a fine ocean breeze. I find a very nice class of people in this country. They are very friendly and try to make everything pleasant for the tourists from the east.

Will say good-bye to my friends, hoping to return home in the near future, to the good old Buckeye State.

Yours truly,

CLYDE PARK.

BUCCYRUS, March 14.—Amateur wireless operators here have been enjoying greatly the concerts given at Washington, D. C., and sent out each night by means of the telephone wireless transmitters over the circuits. The local amateurs say that they can hear the concert music quite plainly.

MARTINS FERRY, March 14.—George White has celebrated his 96th birthday anniversary here. He was wounded in the battle of Chancellorsville during the civil war.

Bank of England, the most extensive banking institution in the world, employs over 1,000 clerks and its buildings cover eight acres.

TROTSKY FACES MANY COUNTER REVOLTS

(By International News Service.)

WASHINGTON, March 12.

There are no less than three distinct and separate movements of sizeable proportions against the Lenin-Trotsky government in Russia, according to official advice received here today.

The revolt of Kronstadt, which has attracted perhaps more general attention than the others is to many observers less significant and less dangerous to the soviet regime than the others.

The first Praetorian guard which is now in control of Kronstadt, is reported in the advice to be made up of disgruntled communists who would condemn Kerensky as readily as they would condemn Lenin and whose chief complaint seems to lie in their belief that the communists at Moscow are getting more than their share of the spoils of government.

They are for the most part, sailors without family or responsibilities, ready to join in any movement which promises them a greater hand in government.

The revolutionary movements in Petrograd and Moscow are made up of workmen whose principal grievance is the alleged attempt on the part of the soviet authorities to break up the trade unions.

AVIATOR IS FINED
(By International News Service.)

LONDON, March 14.—A case believed to be the first of its kind in England, was decided at Glasgow when a fine of twenty dollars was imposed on an airman, William Reeve, for a violation of the air navigation regulations by dropping leaflets from an airplane during the local prohibition veto poll.

NEW YORK, March 14.—Louis Balsama, 29, proprietor of a shoe store in Brooklyn, was robbed of $200 and then killed in his shop, and his helper, Amelio De Coriste, was seriously wounded Saturday night by two Italians. The slayer of Balsama escaped. After Balsama had handed over his money, begging, "Don't shoot," the highwayman pressed his revolver against Balsama's side and pulled the trigger.

COLUMBUS, March 14.—Ohio farmers contributing corn for European and Near East relief are urged to give corn with as little moisture as possible. It is planned by the Ohio farm bureau federation to ship all the donated corn from

Golfer at Ninety-Two

Dwight N. Clark

Dwight N. Clark, of Woodbridge, Conn., photographed at Pinehurst, N. C. on his ninety-second birthday after playing the nine-hole putting course in 29 strokes. He is considered the greatest golfer of his age, having in recent years made several remarkable records. Four years ago, at the age of eighty-eight, Mr. Clark made a forty-five for the nine-hole course at Pinehurst. In 1913 he set a record of 100 eighteen-hole rounds in 101 consecutive weekdays.

FREMONT AND NEWARK BOWL MATCH TODAY

LORAIN, March 14.—Two teams from Newark arrived in the city late yesterday afternoon to enter the eighth annual tournament of the Inter-City Bowling association now on at the Canals Brothers' alleys. The Newark bowlers began rolling at 8 o'clock this morning.

Shortly before noon six teams from Fremont arrived and they began rolling at 1 o'clock. Both Newark and Fremont have expert bowlers in their teams and it is expected that they will hang up some high scores.

HIGH SCHOOL FIVE WIN FROM ALUMNI

OBERLIN, March 14.—The basketball team of the O. H. S. staged a game with the O. H. S. Alumni, Friday night winning by the tune of 19 to 10.

The game was played for the Alumni, who will use the proceeds for the benefit of O. H. S. athletics, including suits for the various teams, etc.

The Alumni has an abundance of good material and put three teams in the field, including the following former stars of the school: Earl Jones, M. Wright, Shorty Pay, Adams, "Butch" Morris, Cran, Williams, Will Power, J. R. Marun, N. Metcalf, Art Martin and Bob Bowen. Both teams played well, which did not prevent the Alumni from adding a little comedy with their part.

When their first team came on the floor, the crowd wondered who had made a raid on the lockers of the women's gym, as all five were dressed in the regulation women's bloomer gym suit. This bunch held the H. S. to a tie score of 7 to 7.

Then came a team in overalls, followed later by a team in the regulation basketball suit.

As a preliminary, four teams of the Shawnee-Crescent club, managed by George Wood, staged two interesting and closely fought games. The younger boys' game ended in a tie at 8 all. The older boys' game ended 9 to 7 in favor of the white team.

HOW LORAIN HI LOST GAME TO LAKEWOOD

LORAIN 14.—That the defeat of Lorain in basketball at Lakewood last Friday night was the result of inefficient officiating was announced yesterday by members of the Athletic association of the local high school. The grievance that the members of the association and High school have to present happened in the last minute of play.

Horn, star ace of the local squad, started a pretty drive down the floor a few feet from Lakewood's basket he was intercepted by two Lakewood players instead of playing the ball along the edge of the basketball court he worked it through the two making a half turn recovering the ball and registering

EIGHT LORAIN COUNTY TEAMS ENTERED IN BIG TOURNAMENT

Four Elyria, Two Lorain and Kipton and Oberlin Basketball Fives Compete for County Title at Elyria Next Friday and Saturday Nights

ELYRIA, March 14.—Eight teams are entered in the tournament to be held at the Elyria Y. M. C. A. gym next Friday and Saturday evenings with the preliminary games being played on Friday and the semi-finals and final on Saturday. Attractions on both evenings are scheduled to start at 7:30 o'clock.

The teams entered in the tournament are the Y. M. C. A. and Estarols of Lorain, Business College of Oberlin, City team of Kipton and the Y. M. C. A. Legion, Enamelled Products Co. and Young Men's Business club of Elyria.

The Amherst Fords and Amherst Furniture team did not enter the tournament.

This is the first county basketball tournament to be held in Lorain county. Several spirited contests are looked for and the games between the Elyria Y. M. C. A. Oberlin Business college and Lorain Estarols which teams are expected to figure in the semi-finals and final. It looks as though the championship lies between the Lorain Estarols and the Elyria Y. M. C. A. apparently with one or two of the other teams expecting to spring surprises.

one of the prettiest shots ever seen by the local team and followers. This shot would have tied the score for the local school but the referee declared that Horn carried the ball off the floor and the basket was declared ineligible.

Members of the high school said that it was an absurd decision and that the referee later made remarks to that effect.

AMHERST HIGH WINS FROM WILLOUGHBY

AMHERST, March 14.—Amherst high basketball team won easily from Willoughby high in a fast game this evening at the gymnasium. Although Willoughby had the heavier team, Amherst outclassed them and excelled in team work and individual prowess. Hearn was the star of the evening. Score: Amherst, 38; Willoughby, 11.

Field baskets—Hearn 8, S. Neumeister 5, T. Neumeister 3, Monger 2, Barber, Thomas, Brino, Worth.

The Lorain grade school classes took possession of the high school gymnasium Saturday afternoon and six games were played. In nearly every game the teams were well balanced and in most cases the scores were close. Scores:

URBANA A. C., OF LORAIN TO PLAY MAY 8

LORAIN, March 14.—That the Urban A. C. will have one of the best baseball teams ever seen in Lorain was assured last night at a meeting of baseball candidates held at the Urban billiard hall on Long avenue. Seventeen of the best baseball players in Lorain answered the call, with the addition of some out-of-town material who will make the team the possible city champions of the coming season.

"Lefty" Dombroski, the heavy southpaw of New Orleans, will do the heavy work on the mound for the Urbans. Pleets, one of the best receivers in the city will back him up. Graft and Burns will also be seen doing mound work. The infield will consist of Sobelski at third, Leo Stencil at short, Stemack at second and Armstrong at first. The outfielders will be Adams, A. Burns and Al Matuszak.

The schedule has already been arranged, the Urbans opening the season with Berea at Berea May 8. Other games will be with Sandusky, Marblehead, Norwalk, Wellington and Port Clinton.

ing circles as Cal White, a boxer, was shot and instantly killed by H. A. McGrath, dance hall policeman, late last night. The shooting followed an argument with the officer, according to reports.

PAST MASTERS IN BATTING TO TRAIN GIANT RECRUITS

By JACK VEIOCK
NEW YORK, March 14.—Giant recruits with batting ability will be tutored by three past masters in the art of slugging the ball at San Antonio this Spring.

John McGraw, veteran manager, and his able lieutenants, Hughie Jennings and Jesse Burkett, make up a trio that is rich in batting lore and experience.

The batting records of these three combined represent twenty-seven years of hitting over the 300 mark in the big show. What a record! Burkett batted better than .300 for eleven years. McGraw for nine and Jennings for seven. Of the trio Burkett was the mightiest and in 1895 he hit .423, a mark that stands second only to Hugh Duffy's .438 in 1894. McGraw's last batting average was .390 in 1899, the year Ed Delehanty set the pace by batting .408. Jennings did his best batting in 1896 when he slammed the spheroid to the tune of .397.

Batters of the present day who set the pace for major league club swinging are brilliant performers who have combined natural ability with long seasons of studying the deliveries of pitchers and the best methods of hitting them. But in McGraw, Jennings and Burkett the Giants are fortified with a trio of students of the art of batting whose experience dates away back to the Baltimore Orioles of the rugged old days of pasturing.

Hence, the Giant youngsters who heed the advice of these three great tutors will have a chance in one period of Spring training to learn the best of what his mentors have learned over a stretch of 30 years and more. What a chance for the youngsters!

But batting is not the only department of the pastime in which McGraw and his assistants are steeped in knowledge. McGraw in the old days was an infielder, played most of the time at third base. Jennings was a shortstop of unusual brilliance and Burkett, though he first came to the Giants as a pitcher in 1890 was converted into an outfielder because he lacked control of the outfield was the best thing that could have happened to -esse, as his batting record shows.

Figuring that McGraw and Jennings are both graduates of the old Ned Hanlon school it can be said that if the Giants step out and win the pennant this year their victory will be a triumph of the good old system that won pennants for Baltimore years ago even though these are not "fighting days" in baseball.

MONTANA RANCHERS USE EGGS FOR CHIPS IN POKER GAME

Shy on Cash at This Time of Year They Turn Basket of Hen Fruit to the Gaming Table and Winners Cash Their "Velvet" in Te Later

BILINGS, Mont., March 14—An egg is an egg—in Montana—and it is also a poker chip with some of the ranchers and settlers on homesteads which have not, for the past two years, paid very liberally on the investment because of the unusual drought and accompanying light crops.

Every Montanan plays poker, be it "stud" with the "sky the limit" or a little friendly game of penny ante. It's the nature of the West—erner to court chance and lay a wager on the turn of a card or a horse race.

But limited finances have been a handicap to many of "the boys" who were wont to while away the long winter evenings out on the ranch in a little quiet game with the neighbors. Bets and the ante got down to such low levels that interest in the game was waning. A fertile mind among them was on a "circulating medium" in the form of "hen fruit" with which to stimulate the play.

Neighbors became curious as to the contents of baskets being gingerly carried of an evening. Housewives, accustomed to the contents of the "egg money," the new apron or material for a pinafore, wondered at "them falling off so of late."

And, again, the merchants themselves have wondered at the sudden success of one rancher as a poultry fancier, while another, recognized in the past as dependable in doing his bit to supply the open market, appears to have had decidedly poor success of late.

The program ended with a song by the Grange, "Sowing the Seed," some Irish jokes, a Fessler; talk, "Ways of the West," Wash Day, Easter, Mrs. Hart; song, Hawaiian Rose and Florence Penfound; "When to Spray and how to Spray Mixtures," W. H. Hart; loved by discussion; dialogue, three girls, "The Widow and Her Opinion of Cooks, Suits and Husbands"; reading, "The Abner Started Things," Mrs. Nett.

The Grange, "My Children's Home."

It is especially urged that there be a large attendance at the next night meeting on April 5, when the Ridgeville degree team will enter the third and fourth degrees in a large circle of candidates.

THE WAR IN SOUTH AMERICA

Hostilities between the Central American Republics of Panama and Costa Rica, presumably over the location of an illusive boundary line as well as the possession of three or four small villages or towns, are really deceiving. There is considerable more at stake.

The hot and humid climate and low lying moist soil make the disputed territory rich in tropical products, notably bananas and coconuts. A great corporation, with headquarters in the United States, maintains a fleet of many ships plying between New York, New Orleans, and ports in Costa Rica, Panama, and Columbia, the respective holds of which carry machinery, and merchandise south, and return with thousands of bunches of green bananas. The banana plantations, comprising thousands of acres, have been acquired by this American company, practically eliminating the small independent banana planters and exporters.

Were the entire truth relative to the present conflict among Central American Republics revealed, it would undoubtedly be ascertained that customs house receipts collected at frontier and seaport towns have a most important bearing on the situation. The export fee is levied on each bunch of bananas sent out of the country, and with some ships carrying 40,000 bunches and upwards this involves considerable revenue. The duties paid directly by the fruit companies, and ultimately by the American consumer are splendid revenue producers for the little governments of Central America and undoubtedly deemed by them sufficient cause for disputing the ownership of otherwise valueless territory.

Press reports bring to light the fact that many lives and large property interests of American citizens in the disputed territory are jeopardized. Notwithstanding the negotiations for an armistice, it may require considerable diplomacy on the part of the United States to restore permanent peace on terms of exact justice between contestants.

PREVENTION OF INSANITY

The time is not very far behind us when the care of the mentally diseased consisted mainly in confining the dangerous cases and permitting the others to roam around, objects of some pity, but more ridicule. Another step backward a little further and we are in the days of Bedlam, when lunatics were kept in chains without care or medical aid, to be visited by the people of London as objects of curious interest. How terrible were these conditions we still see by looking at one of Holgarth's paintings, so painfully real.

Bedlam was a word that came from corrupting the name of sacred Bethlehem, the hospital of St. Mary of Bethlehem in London having been changed to a madhouse. The passing of Bedlam was symbolic of the recreation of a meaning the name had lost, the mercy taught us from Bethlehem. We gained new ideas of insanity and set about the great work which has given us hospitals throughout our country for the care and cure of these unfortunates. Indeed, we have been well satisfied with the advance we have made, too satisfied perhaps.

It is something of a jolt to this self-satisfaction to be told by the United States Health Service that future generations may regard us as only a step beyond the Bedlam period. This is brought out by a survey made in Oregon which showed that 500 children out of 32,500 in schools were in need of mental doctoring and were likely to be the insane of the days to come. Instead of resting with cases that have been acute enough to be treated, the federal service says we must get to work to prevent and correct mental diseases at their source, exactly as we seek to prevent tuberculosis and other diseases by removing their causes.

This is a new and great problem, a clue perhaps to much of our crime. It may be the medical monument of our age that it was at this time the step was taken away from the old idea of mere cure of mental diseases to their prevention, as radical a change in actual effects as from the Bedlam of old to our present humane hospitals.

THE QUARRELING FORESTERS

The people interested in forest conservation are apart by a mighty controversy.

The present head of the government forest service stands staunchly by the Snell measure which provides that states with forests still uncut will pass laws to prevent forest devastation satisfactory to the secretary of agriculture, and enforce them properly, the United States will bear part of the cost involved. But Gifford, who probably has a larger following, insists that the measure cannot be depended upon to do the right thing. His contention is that the lumbermen will dominate the situation and the measure is to be inserted in state

A World Without Advertising

Chaos
Horse Trades
Creamed Teeth
For Country Boys
A Waste of Time

An Editorial On Advertising

To realize the Value of Advertising—just imagine a world without it.

There would be no standard of value. Price cunning would have the strange hold on honest purpose. Sliding prices and special discounts would lure the buyer into thinking he had bought a bargain, when he had paid too much.

The "Get All You Can" dealer with his policy of Caveat Emptor (let the buyer beware) might predominate over the one price dealer whose policy is the square deal to all.

No buyer would know what was the right price—or the fair value.

Prices on the same article in different localities would vary 100, 200 and 300 per cent, depending on what the traffic could bear in each locality.

Every purchase would be like an old fashioned horse trade, with the advantage on the side of the rapacious and avaricious.

The buyer and seller would be antagonists.

Distrust and suspicion would replace confidence.

The seller would not have the advantage of building up business by selling brands of established value at the one fair price. Nor would the buyer have the protection which such brands offer.

There would be no uniformity of quality or value. There would be hundreds of brands where one exists now. This would mean higher production costs, higher selling costs, and difficulty of choice on the part of the buyer.

And "the get all you can" attitude of the "sliding price" dealer and the suspicious born of uncertainty on the part of the buyer would result in a haggling, bargaining method of buying and selling that wastes the most precious thing in the world—time.

Purchases that now take a moment or so would take hours.

No—the complex civilization of today is reared right into advertising. Economic necessity demands it. It changes uncertainty to certainty—chaos to system, and under the daylight of truth furnishes the most economic system of distribution that has ever been devised.

The very people who short-sightedly call advertising unnecessary—the cracker box philosophers who say that advertising cost is added to the prices of merchandise—are benefitting from advertising in every purchase they make.

They are saving time—they are saving money, because advertising has stabilized values everywhere and lowered prices. Advertising protects them—some way every day.

Advertising not only protects the buyer—not only a reducer of prices and an increaser of values to the public, but it is of the greatest educational value.

In ten years advertising induced more people to care for their teeth and use safe dental creams than the advice of the dentists for over half a century.

Advertising has given the country boy the styles of the city. It has put city conveniences in country homes. It has increased the standards of living everywhere by pointing the way to these conveniences, but by lowering the cost.

Buy from merchants who advertise, and buy the brands which are advertised.

For the brand is a guarantee of satisfaction. It is a protection that insures quality, and assures the greatest value for every cent of the purchase price.

BRYAN'S, March 14.—The 23 pupils of the parochial schools and the 420 pupils of the public schools here consumed 1,100 gallons of milk and 24,600 crackers during February, according to a report just made. These pupils were in the nutrition classes. Besides this, the pupils, in taking nourishment from the half-pint bottles of milk used 3,000 straws to get the milk into their systems. All who took these morning lunches increased in weight.

The federal government. The Pinchot crowd backs the measure proposed by Senator Capper. The former forester says that this bill will bring about "such an effective, rational control over the lumber monopolists as will prevent them from continuing to destroy the productive capacity of their forest lands."

For those not familiar with the more technical policies and the general experience of foresters, it is difficult to make a choice between the battling groups. Yet public support is asked by both sides. Both have issued their propaganda with little restriction upon the outlay for stationery. What seems to be needed is some shrewd umpire, gifted at distinguishing between the merits of a case and the enthusiasms connected with it. Among conservationists, enthusiasm is a stock of trade that
